

The Warrior of Light embraces his passions and enjoys them intensely. He knows that there is no need to renounce the pleasures of conquest; they are part of life and bring joy to all those who participate in them, but he never loses sight of those things that last or of the strong bonds that are forged over time.

The warrior can distinguish between what is transient and what will last.

The Manual of the Warrior of Light

Love is not a habit, a commitment, or a debt.

Love simply is. No definitions.

Love and don't ask too many questions.

Just love.

The Witch of Portobello

Love doesn't ask many questions, because once we start thinking, we start to feel afraid. It's an inexplicable fear and there's no point putting it into words.

Risks are there to be taken.

By the River Piedra I Sat Down and Wept

People have been trying to understand the universe through love ever since the beginning of time.

Brida

Love isn't desire or knowledge or admiration. It's a challenge, it's an invisible fire.

The Witch of Portobello